BACKGROUND: The Government Code requires the Legislative Council to complete a nonsubstantive recodification of Texas statutes to make them more accessible, understandable and usable.

DIGEST: SB 894 is the nonsubstantive recodification of the executive title of the Government Code. The title deals with executive agencies not classified by subject matter elsewhere. It includes chapters on the governor and lieutenant governor, attorney general, comptroller, treasurer, secretary of state, the state militia and various law-enforcement and military boards and commissions, historical and arts commissions, the Tourist Development Agency, Automated Information and Telecommunications Council and Texas National Research Laboratory Commission.
